

ANGLICANS ... BUILDING A GREEN TOMORROW

Church makes commitment to building a better planet.

The Anglican Diocese of Canberra and Goulburn has become the first church in Australia to be admitted as a member of The Green Building Council of Australia. Tracey Matthews General Manager and Registrar of the Diocese is seen receiving the Certificate of Membership from Chief Minister Jon Stanhope. The Diocese firmly acknowledges it has a social responsibility for an essential change to more energy efficient buildings and building management practices. In support of this the Diocesan Environment Commission has recently produced a Sustainable Building Policy which contains guidelines for all Parishes, Schools and other Ministry Units in the Diocese to follow.
